SPANISH THRONE IS TOTTERING

MADRID, July 19.—The discovery of a revolutionary plot affecting every important city in Spain to-day started the Government, and a meeting of all Cabinet officers was called, and called by Premier Canalejas for to-morrow.

The throne is tottering, according to authentic reports, and the Government has ordered the army to be on the alert for service. The situation at Barcelona, chief Anarchist headquarters, is worse, according to semi-official statements, than it has been since the execution of Francisco Ferrer.

The discovery of a plot on the life of King Alfonso XIII. by the Catalan revolutionaries, who were en route to Segovia, is part of the general revolutionary scheme but it is on that that the order for the arrest of the well known Anarchist leader to-day is based.

The guards about the palace have been doubled, and the King's personal bodyguard was to-day still further increased in spite of his protestations.

The Government's opposites, to the Catholic Church has done little to placate the extreme radicals, particularly at Barcelona, according to current reports.

Troops have been ordered to Gijón in preparation for a general strike called there, and the declaration of martial law.

at several places is expected within a few hours.

Mrs. Edley was up at 6 o'clock to-day to start her usual. After breakfast in her own apartment in the Chestnut Hill home she devoted the major part of the morning to reading and to reading from the Bible and from her own works. Like the poet or the musician, she finds in her past works inspiration for renewed effort.

The regular afternoon drive followed the morning work. The car was driven to the garage for the drive. Mrs. Edley prefers to drive to automobile.

CHESTNUT HILL ROMANCE ENDS IN COURT PLEA

Label for divorce has ended the romance of young James V. Dignowity of Philadelphia, who was known as "the richest man in Harvard," and of his pretty wife, formerly Miss Marion St. Clair Whittemore of Chestnut Hill.

Their elopement from Boston, four years ago was a society sensation. The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clarke of Chestnut Hill, were astounded. James V. Dignowity, Sr., of Philadelphia, the bridegroom's father, was wroth. But the first sight of the winsome face of his daughter pected daughter-in-law softened his heart. He forgave the couple, whose married life seemed then without prospect of unhappiness.

But Mrs. Dignowity has filed libel for divorce against her husband in the Norfolk county Superior Court at Dedham. The husband is now living in New York.

When James Victor Dignowity was in Harvard he was not only styled "the richest student in Harvard" but was as attractive a fellow as you will. He met Miss Marian St. Clair Whittemore, who was at Miss Whittemore was graduated from Wellesley in June, 1906. Young Dignowity was more reticent than ever. It is likely that he feared opposition at his own home to his marrying. He waited till his multi-millionaire father was in Texas on business. Then he persuaded Miss Whittemore to elope.

A Book of French and English Highways

"From Irish Castles to French Chateaux" is a gossip record of European travel down pilgrim ways in Great Britain and France. The book is abundantly illustrated from photographs made along the route. The author is Miss Norma B. Carson of "The Book News Monthly." She tells of her journey in the blithe, chattering fashion of the returned traveller still at leisure on a long Summer afternoon. Winter's evening, and recounting to the hearthside what she saw and felt at the time, she gives the reader the feeling that she is there.

The chapters on the cathedral cities all build a memory of ancient Rome in the heart of England, and the tales from London, the historic and literary ghostland, are accounts that century after century again upon these oft-visited, old-fashioned places of men and memories.

The chapter on Paris, "A Sketch of Impressionism," is a pleasant vista of the many-mooted city of the Seine.

A black and white photograph of a building facade. A prominent sign on the left side of the building reads "DIVING GIRLS". Below this sign, there are several smaller signs, including one that says "10 DIVING". The building appears to be a multi-story structure with various architectural details. The overall scene is somewhat grainy and has a vintage feel.

VAHEY HE WILL QUIT FIELD

Former Senator Says
No Intention of Withdrawing as Candidate for Democratic Nomination for Governor

"I Have Foss's Assurance
Says, 'That He Would Not Think of Running Against Me'; Stir Among Politicians

BEFORE leaving for Old Orchard Beach last night, to spend the weekend with his family, former Senator James Vahey gave out a statement in which he again declares his intention not to draw from the contest for Governor.

"I have no intention of withdrawing from the contest," he says. "I have Foss's assurance that he would not think of being a candidate against me. I have no intention of being arrayed against him."

The Vahey declaration created a stir among Democratic politicians, a devoid of bitterness. Senator Vahey says it is Republicans who are trying to create trouble and discord. The people, he says, are aroused. He is quite sure they will not forgive any candidate who allows personal ambition to stand in the way of a triumph of principles.

Kind Words for Foss.

Mr. Vahey speaks of Congressman Foss quite as the Congressman speaks to his friends about the young Waterbury leader. Mr. Foss," says Mr. Vahey, "conducted himself toward me as a friend and a gentleman in all this preliminary discussion concerning the availability of either of us as a candidate. I have treated him in precisely the same way. I have great respect for his ability and integrity. I could very cheerfully support him for Governor of Massachusetts if he were the nominee."

The Vahey statement, in full, reads as follows:

"I have no intention of withdrawing from the contest for the nomination. I have Mr. Foss's assurance that he would not think of being the candidate against me. I have no intention of being arrayed against him."

In the same communication Mr. Vahey states he could "cheerfully support Mr. Foss for Governor, if he were the nominee." The communication to the Boston American from Mr. Vahey will inspire great political interest, for it has been asserted by many that he would withdraw as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor. His statement reads:

"Some Republican politicians, in dire distress because of the signs of the times, are at their old trick of trying to stir up trouble in the ranks of the Democratic and independent voters throughout the State. They are trying to substitute discord for harmony, in order to prevent the almost inevitable defeat of their party candidates this Fall.

Declares the People Are Aroused.

"Like all politicians who are only laboring for the 'flesh-pots' they have no conception of the strength of the movement which exists in this Commonwealth for better government of the State and nation. This strength is sufficient to sweep before it any party or candidates who favor the special privilege-seeking classes, who want monopolies of the public service, who keep the government far removed from the people, and who raise the prices of the necessities of life beyond the reach of the great consuming masses of the nation.

"The people of Massachusetts are aroused. They will not tolerate any bickering, nor will they forgive any candidate who permits his personal ambition to stand in the way of the triumph of the great principles of popular government, which is bound to come this Fall if its friends are arrayed on one side and its enemies on the other.

"It has seemed to the self-constituted guardians of the public welfare in Massachusetts that the surest way to prevent the accomplishment of the beneficent results which are bound to accrue is to cause Congressman Foss and me to engage in a bitter factional quarrel for the Democratic nomination for Governor in Massachusetts, because in such a quarrel they see their only hope of success.

"They are going to fail in their purpose."
